25 Innovative Re-Purposed Home Fittings Designs

Publié le 01 avril 2009 par Jeremy Dumont

It's a well-known adage that one man's junk is another man's treasure. But today, with the consumer's growing eco-conscience, the proverb has taken on new meaning. These are post-modern times, and one person's scratched CDs maybe very well end up as someone else's lounge chair. And if you think that you've seen the last of that empty wine bottle you tossed into the recycling bin, don't act too surprised when it's resurrected as a lamp. The following are 25 examples of household items that have found their way out of the trash bin and into a place of prominence within the home.

Tail Light

A busted tail light can you get pulled over but it can also give you a creative new light fixture. Artist Stuart Hygarth was inspired by lenses covering vehicle lights, seeing in them something more elevated than banal tail lights. He literally elevates the scrapyard fodder by hanging them from the ceiling and illuminating them with a single fluorescent bulb from within.

Plastic Bag Chair

Plastic bags are the pariah of landfills the world over, with their only saving grace being the fact that they're not a diaper. Artist Ryan Frank's plastic bag chair was such a hit with art show goers that by the end of its run, the color was rubbing off of the arms.

Water Bottle Lampshade

By splicing and dicing used water bottles, artist Sarah Turner quenched a thirst and was able to add the lamp to her ReDesign lighting collection. The lampshade design is up for the title of Concept Product of the Year in the UK.
